Q16 - What aspects of this course contributed most to your learning?

1	While there were required readings, Dr. Jensen also provided additional readings so that nerds like me could dive deeper and find greater context for the content. The lectures were precise, which I appreciate, and he gave us a lot of autonomy on how to do our work. Additionally, I disclosed there were some family matters that may arise during the semester, and he gave me empathy, understanding, as well as provided me with resources and flexibility for if there were ever a time I'd need it. I very much appreciated that.
2	Thorough lectures that review the reading material for the week and ensure we understand.
3	The study guides
4	The Professor was open to constructive feedback when the workload seemed unattainable. His folders with additional information and helpful articles in Perusall was a great additional resource each week. Also, his organization of the course and thorough information was also helpful. Lastly, he was available via email always for timely feedback.
5	Reading and creating content. Perusall is a good option for reading content and commenting about it but also engaging with classmates.
6	I really appreciated the thorough and timely feedback we received on assignments. Timely grading has been a huge weakness of my experience in the program thus far so this is very appreciated. I also thought the final project was like nothing else I had done before so I think that hands on experience was helpful! The study guides were helpful for really focusing in on key points. I also found the recorded lectures to be hugely helpful!
7	I feel the readings, and study guides, allowed me to use what I have learned to my current role in real time.

Q17 - How can this course be improved to enhance student learning? And why?

Response Rate: 85.71% (6 of 7)

1	While it was a lot of reading, I do understand it is a condensed class. There were times, during the beginning of the semester, it was a little overwhelming.
2	This course included a lot of material to cover. I don't think it was a bad thing but it was a bit overwhelming at times. Lectures were good, professor did a good job keeping us engaged. Quizzes were good. Assignments were a bit robust
3	N/A
4	I think it could be fine-tuned for an executive program. It's a lot of detail, where the courses in the past expected us to come to class with some basic knowledge and understanding. For example, while I know some undergrads or even graduates who never worked may need to learn to write a professional email, for us in the executive program, it was a little strange. I really did appreciate his openness to suggestions and quick feedback.
5	I like the study guides and they are very helpful, but some of them feel like they are more busy work than learning. More specific questions may be helpful.
6	Dr. Jensen could consider using folio announcements rather than email. Students are already in this platform and so it would keep communication more streamline and it is easier to refer back to previous announcements rather than previous emails. Additionally, the way Perusall is used could be improved. I think materials should be uploaded to folio rather than perusall and only readings actually being used for a perusall assignment should be uploaded there. Overall, I appreciated the engagement Dr. Jensen provided for the class!
